Press Release

PLANOX washbasin units completely pre-assembled with taps and water supply

In the face of staff shortages, building managers and operators can save time on planning and installation thanks to the 'plug & play' commissioning option in the shape of the new PLANOX washbasin units.

With the new pre-assembled PLANOX washbasin units, KWC Professional offers the optimum system solution for public sanitary facilities, industrial washing facilities, leisure, sports and educational facilities, as well as for the custodial and security sector. As an efficient and cost-optimised alternative to combining individual modular products, the manufacturer now offers completely prefabricated units including fittings and water channels.

The clear, architecturally minimalist design made of high-quality, recyclable stainless steel emphasises the long-lasting character of the pre-configured washbasin units. A straight front wall provides a generously sized sink. The sloping lower edge of the basin allows water to drain away reliably, demonstrating the design affinity with the PLANOX wash troughs from the KWC Professional product range. The high and wide apron also gives the overall product stable proportions. The integrated rear wall also serves as a splash guard. The inclined and offset tap panel prevents unwanted objects from being placed on them, while also adding to the solid stability of the washbasin units.

Professional

The new PLANOX washbasin units are available in four widths with one to four wash places (600 mm wide each) and three tap variants – both with hydraulic or electronic bibtaps and with electronic wall-mounted mixers with temperature lever. There is no need for time-consuming chiselling and slotting work, as all variants require only one water connection and drain, regardless of the number of wash places.
